REPORT OF THE BOARD OF MISSIONS.

Omitting in this place mere statistics, the Secretary for the Board presents the following reflections:

Clearly enough it appears that the labor and money have not been expended in vain, and equally manifest is the conviction that the work must not be abandoned nor supplies diminished. Christianity is by its very genius and by authority of its founder a missionary institution. "Jesus went about doing good" in every possible way, even sacrificing himself for the souls of men. The Apostles went forth everywhere, "without purse or scrip, for the laborer was worthy of his hire."

It is God's plan to save men by men, not by etherial beings that can subsist on thought and emotion. Hence, if men must preach, they must be paid, and more liberally if they work cheerfully.

The revenues of the Board are not equal to the demand, indeed the discrepancy is painfully great. Your Treasurer reports ability to pay only fifty cents in the dollar to the claimants on the annual missionary collection. Be it remembered, these claims are small, even if paid in full. Worse still for the missionary is the plan of paying missionary money chiefly at the end of the year, thus compelling these laborers to endure aggravated hardship by resorting to shifts painful in the extreme, and making them live on credit at starvation prices. The Board earnestly insists on raising this collection early in the year, never later than March and April-the sooner the better. Money is usually more abundant at the beginning of the year, and it is then most imperatively needed. Postponement is wrong for obvious reasons. It leads not only to the damage of the missionary, but to serious damage of the superannuated. The collections, by delay, are complicated, often compounded-one interferes with another, and all are hindered. These collections should never be combined. A faithful man can usually get as much for each as he can for both when blended. Zeal for missionary operations seems to be waning in the churches, and too little effort is made to cultivate a wide and expansive liberality of sentiment and means. The liberality in this matter does not correspond to the magnitude of the interests involved. Isolated cases there are, and are very noticeable for their infrequency and as a burning rebuke to the prevailing lethargy in the Conference at large. One city in the Conference contributed more missionary money than several Districts, and some others equally able are far behind. Such inequalities ought not to exist. Such want of appreciation of a great cause is mournful. Whatever may be the explanation or excuse, the facts should lead to close examination. Christianity can only live and thrive by growing and expanding. If there be little need for the gospel among pagans, true logic leads to the conclusion there was no need for it among us—the logical terminus being this, Christianity is worthless, if not worse, and ought to be abandoned as a pestilent superstition.

The Board believes that the work of spreading the gospel in heathen countries can never assume much magnitude until there is a different organization. The foreign and home departments ought to be completely separated. Various views obtain among wise and holy men as to the best schemes for carrying the gospel into all the world as Christ directed. This is not the time and place to enter into elaborate discussion of the subject. The Board are glad to know it is receiving much consideration, and lively hope is entertained that at an early day a method will be presented and accepted which will, work efficiently and without friction. Let press and pulpit give more prominence to the topic. Preachers must enlarge their views by increasing their intelligence in the matter. A vigorous campaign should be planned against infidelity and superstition and prosecuted with the zeal of Jesus and his Apostles when they sought to plant the banner of the cross over the citadel of the Cæsars. The preaching of the cross may yet, as in ancient times, be deemed foolishness, but it is now, as then, "the power of God and the wisdom of God."

Corruptions roll like a flood over the land, and virtue seems almost destined to defeat and extinction, but there is no remedy except the peals of Sinai and the wailing and weeping of Calvary. Philosophy makes men wiser, not better. Civilization, as it advances without an equal movement of Christian forces, is a splendid delusion, a rapid and sure way to damnation. What if the intellect be expanded and elevated, if at the same time the affections be dwarfed and contracted? How can the world be saved from a supercilious denial of God's being and authority, or from a drivelling superstition. except by clear and just conceptions of him and mankind in all their relations. "What man knoweth the things of a man but the spirit of man which is in him? even so no man knoweth the things of God but the spirit of God."

Revelation is a moral necessity. If it has been made, a knowledge of its truths is essential to human dignity and honorable destiny. May the Church awake and put on her strength and put it forth. "Out of Zion God hath shined the perfection of beauty." "Arise and shine for thy light is come, and the glory of God hath risen upon thee."

All of which is respectfully submitted. J. W. HINTON, Secretary.

N. B. There are 20 missions in the Conference, having 35 or 50 churches and many more preaching places. There are reported 1,730 members; 225 received during the year. Adults baptized, 68; infants, 21. Sunday-schools, 16; pupils, 306. These missions have raised towards their own support near $2,000, averaging about $100 each. There was appropriated by the Board about $6,000, of which the missionaries received only fifty cents in the dollar, making their average pay about $250, including the payments of their charges.

REPORT ON SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

The Board of Managers of the Sunday-school Society, South Georgia Conference, beg leave to make the following report:

The last few years constitute a period of trials and revolutions throughout the civilized world. Change has followed change until old things are rapidly passing away. The hand of providence seems to be drifting the formative agencies of society to some grand culmination of events. And among the active forces of these revolutionary times none are more conspicuous than the modern Sunday-school excitement, which so largely pervades the Protestantism of the age. Its magnitude already commands the consideration of the civilized world, and its praise is in all the churches. If the sparrow cannot fall without divine cognizance, and the very hairs of our heads are all numbered by omniscience, surely this grand movement is not without deepest providential significance. As such is its prominence, may it not be the method by which the Almighty will so turn "the hearts of the fathers to the children and the hearts of the children to the fathers," as shall hasten the prophetic day when "a little child shall lead them?" The conversion of old and hardened sinners is a forlorn hope in most cases; but a wise and well directed Sunday-school system may rear a generation of converted children, and thus present a people ready prepared for the Lord. If the world is ever laid as a trophy at the Redeemer's feet, it must be done by nipping evil in the bud and by strangling sin in the birth; and there is no agency known among men so potent for this great work as the Sunday-school influence—forming, as it does, the link between parental care and mature church obligation.

The relation of Methodism to this glorious institution of modern christianity is vital, honorable and encouraging, and her obligations to it are commensurate with the demands of its broad and growing mission. The primitive church had her schools of catachumens, and more modern religious bodies have made sporadic efforts in this direction; but it was not until the year 1769, that Hannah Ball, a Methodist lady, "established a school in Wycombe, England, and was instrumental in training many children in the knowledge of the holy scriptures." Only twenty-two years later, Miss Cooke, another Methodist lady, was in conversation with Robert Raikes, of Gloucester, when he pointed to groupes of neglected children, saying, "What shall we do for them?" To which she replied: "Let us teach them to read and take them to church." The suggestion was accepted, and "soon Mr. Raikes and his female friend conducted the first company of Sunday-school scholars to church, exposed to the comments and laughter of the populace as they passed along the streets with their ragged procession." Thus was the present system of Sunday-schools originated. And these facts all attest that Methodism holds an honored material relation to this prosperous child of the church in its inception and organization. Mr. Wesley published the plan of holding these schools in 1784, recommending them to his people, and thenceforward they became an integral part of the most powerful of all modern religious reforms. Such has been its prosperity, that the various branches of Methodism alone number near three million of Sunday-school scholars; and these, together with other protestant communions, swell the number to a vast multitude—although the institution is only in its eighty-ninth year. The will of God concerning this institution may be expressed to the church in the language of Pharaoh's daughter to the mother of Moses: "Take this child and nurse it for me." Nor can any Methodist, minister or layman, ignore this charge and yet be guiltless before God. The history of the church shows that those religious bodies which refuse this important care are rapidly losing their influence in the religious world. Neither can Methodism shun or mitigate this responsibility without labeling herself for decline and ruin. Under the present order of providence, the Sunday-school is vital to the prosperity of the church.

But, grand and useful as this system is, it is not without its difficulties and its dangers. These dangers will appear from several considerations. The mission of the Sunday-school is to so instruct the children in the knowledge of the holy scriptures as to "make them wise unto salvation;" and anything that prevents or hinders this heaven-born purpose is a blight and a curse to the cause of Christ-it is destroying the seed corn of the church. It may be endangered from the overwhelming popularity of the movement, which may generate a morbid enthusiasm whose chief influence will be the substitution of a plausible worldliness for spiritual life and power-looking only to the popular eclat of numbers. The magnitude of its patronage may brood another danger, by stimulating greedy publishers to the production of an unsanctified literature and music, which will poison while it gratifies. And the influx of a large number of unconverted teachers and scholars, attended by these influences, may install a casual regime which will pander to unlawful and doubtful amusements, and at the same time relax all wholesome spiritual discipline. Through the frivolous tendencies of modern society too, the spirit and purpose of this glorious institution may be toned down to the level of a mere social compact, suited only to the tastes of the giddy and thoughtless "lovers of pleasure more than of God." There is great danger to the spiritual character of the Sunday-school influence from this quarter. It is a fearful thing to rear our children in such a quasi connection with the word of God, as to make such undue influences render its sacred teachings "a savor of death unto death rather than of life unto life." But we hope better things of our Sunday-schools, though we thus speak, even "things that accompany salvation."

To remedy these difficulties and arrest these dangers, we most earnestly urge the attention of all our schools to our own Sunday-school literature and to the maintenance of a close spiritual discipline. We can but deprecate the fact that many of our scheols neglect our uniform lessons, ignore our Wesleyan catechisms and reject our own select music—substituting them with mongrel libraries, many of whose publications are obnoxious to our doctrines and averse to our polity as a church. We think it no vain boasting to say we have a lesson system, a system of catechetical divinity, a compilation of music, and a number of commentaries, bible dictionaries and other theological works, equal, if not superior to any in the land, and in which there is no moral poison; and why then seek the mixed waters which flow from dubious fonntains? We commend our own publications to our own people. Nor can we close this report without urging kindly and earnestly upon all our people the absolute necessity of close, persevering, spiritual discipline in all our schools. A pure literature, pious, devoted teachers, and correct moral discipline, will insure a good school and inure to the salvation of the children. And to these add unity, energy, patience and faith, and the power of our Sunday-school system for good will rise like wave after wave until millions yet unborn shall be landed upon the "shining shore" where they will be "forever with the Lord."

It was the purpose of your Board to render full and complete statistics in every respect; but the data not being furnished, they must be content with a very meagre report in this direction:

At the close of the year 1872 we reported 276 schools, 1,850 officers and teachers, 11,479 pupils, and $1,545 50 collected from Sunday-schools for missionary purposes.

At the close of the year 1873 we report 278 schools; 1,724 officers and teachers, 11,201 pupils, and $1.419 60 raised from these schools for missionary purposes.

Increase during the year 1873: 2 schools; decrease during the same period, 156 officers and teachers; decrease of Sabbath-school pupils, 278; and a decrease of $125 90 in the missionary contributions from the Sabbath-schools.

These are sad statistical facts. The late financial panic may be some apology for the decline of missionary moneys collected, but how can we account for this falling off in teachers and scholars? These figures represent great want of Sunday-school zeal upon the part of our people, or culpable negligence on the part of our ministry. These facts certainly commend themselves to the conscience and prayerful sense of obligation in every minister and layman of our Conference. Can we consent to such a decrease the ensuing year? Verily, this is no time to slacken our zeal, when the public school systems are seeking to drive the bible from the common schools of the country. A. J. DEAN, Secretary.

REPORT ON ORPHANS' HOME.

Report of the Committee on the Orphans' Home, South Georgia Conference, Macon, December 17th, 1873.

The Commission appointed at the last session of the South Georgia Conference on the Orphans' Home, beg leave to submit the following report:

At an early day after the adjournment of the Conference, the commission met in Macon. They had a free and full conference with several gentlemen, citizens of Macon, and received from them the tender of the following property for an orphans' home, subject to the considerations hereinafter mentioned, to-wit: ninety four acres of land situated about two miles from the city, with a good house containing ten rooms; also, several smaller outbuildings. There are twenty-six acres under fence, with a fine orchard of fruit trees, and vineyard of choice grape vines; a fine, never failing spring of water, with bathing and washing house, and fixtures complete; several head of cattle, one mule, and all the fixtures, furniture, tools, wagons, etc.

The only condition required was that we should never divert the use of the property from an Orphans' Home, or remove it from the county of Bibb, though we might change it to any other place when it was clearly ascertained that the interest of the Home would be promoted thereby.

We accepted the property with the conditions stated, and applied for a charter according to law. This has been granted, and the charter recorded. The titles have all been made out, and the deeds signed and executed by the proper authorities, and they are herewith submitted to this Conference as a part of this report.

The agent has gone forward carefully, and reports that there are now eleven children, who are orphaus indeed, who are inmates of this home, and are being fed, clothed and educated.

The house has been thoroughly repaired and painted, the fencing has all been put in good condition, a large garden paled in, and is in good order. A good crop of corn, potatoes, peas and other vegetables has been raised on the place. All the children, and the persons employed on the place have enjoyed good health and are happy, either at school or at work.

From all this it will be seen that the prospects of the Home are exceedingly encouraging, and it is very gratifying to your commission to be able to report that the operations of the year give manifest promise of future and certain success.

SAMUEL ANTHONY, for the Board.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION.

The Committee on Education, in submitting their report, deem it unnecessary to enter into an elaborate argument to show the necessity of sustaining our institutions of learning, male and female. Nor do they propose to deal in fulsome eulogy of their great success or in extravagant prophecies of their future achievements. While we rejoice in the noble work they have already accomplished, amidst trials and discouragements of no ordinary magnitude, we feel a profound anxiety for their future—a future full of perils yet full of hope.

There has never been a period in the history of this country when education commanded more attention in Church and State than at the present time. The liberal provision made by our several municipal governments, and by the State authorities, for the education of the masses, clearly indicates a general interest and deep concern on this subject. The State would henceforth have itself regarded not as the enemy but as the friend of education, and yet it is to be deeply deplored that in certain public schools of the land the bible is excluded. That book on whose sublime truths rests every hope that is imperishable, and in whose revelations intellectual beings can alone find those lessons most important to be known, is denied a name and a place. It is true that the State ought not to be the propagandist of creeds, or the teacher of religious dogmas, or the champion of a church. But this is by no means involved in the obligation to allow the bible its proper place in human culture and development. Denominational institutions cannot, ought not to be superseded or displaced by the common schools of the country, though they offer inducements in the form of free tuition and mere nominal expenses. All education should be infused with religious truth. The Church has her theatre of action and industry, from which she cannot be excused; and by endowments we should seek to place all our colleges in an attitude where we may successfully cope with all other institutions of like grade. If we submit to be taxed, in order to sustain our common school system, let us nobly contribute of our means to support the institutions of the Church, until education afforded by the Church shall be as cheap as that afforded by the State.

In this view, we are glad that an endowment is proposed to be raised for Emory College. Let the church enter on this work vigorously, and never cease her contributions until the end is attained. Thus will the church be placed side by side with the State, and be eminently qualified to meet its solemn responsibilities and ask for public patronage.

EMORY COLLEGE. - We are glad to learn that this institution is still doing a good work for the country. With a competent and faithful Faculty: with class and prayer meetings among the students and the prevalence of a high, moral and religious sentiment; with every facility for intellectual culture, and the prospect of new and commodious buildings, the Church should make its patronage bear some proportion to its merits. The College classes for the past year numbered 122—the Academic 70. The patronage has been good, considering the stringency of the times. A gracious religious influence has prevailed during the year.

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE.—We are satisfied that this institution was never more worthy of public patronage. The present year was one of brilliant success, though the small pox panic interrupted the exercises for about six weeks. Thirty eight young ladies graduated at the last Commencement. The present monetary crisis has reduced the patronage about one-fourth. We confidently expect, however, a large increase on the fourth. We confidently expect, however, a large increase on the return of our usual prosperity. The College has also been blessed with a revival during the year.

ANDREW FEMALE COLLEGE. - At the last Commencement, President Mc-Gehee resigned, and Professor A. H. Flewellen was elected to fill the vacancy. The selection was an admirable one. One hundred and twenty pupils have been in attendance the present year, and the Trustees look forward with confidence to a large increase.

LEVERT FEMALE COLLEGE.—This institution, located at Talbotton, presents many claims upon the Church for its support, and we are pleased to know that the patronage has been very encouraging the past year.

The following resolutions, which were referred to your Committee, touching the endowment of Emory College, they hereby report back to the Conference and recommend their adoption, viz:

Resolved, 1. That this Conference has heard with great interest and pleasure the memorial and accompanying circular of the Board of Trustees of Emory College, asking the Church for an endowment of $500,000, and the co-operation of this Conference in this noble and generous enterprise.

2. That the purpose of the Trustees meets our hearty approval, and that we pledge ourselves to do all we can to make it a success.

3. That the preachers of this Conference be required to distribute the circulars that may be placed in their hands, and report to this body the amounts contributed in their respective charges to this specific object, and that the Statistical Secretary prepare a column in the annual statistical blanks for such contributions.

In conclusion, your Committee offer the following resolutions:

Resolved, 1. That we recognize anew our obligations to foster and support our institutions of learning, and hereby pledge ourselves to greater diligence in securing the patronage they so richly deserve.

diligence in securing the patronage they so richly deserve.

2. That the third Sabbath in June next be set apart as a day of special prayer, both private and public, in order to invoke the blessing of God upon them.

3. That we request the presiding Bishop to appoint Rev. O. L. Smith, President, and Rev. I. S. Hopkins, Professor of Emory College, and Rev. E. H. Myers, President, and Revs. C. W. Smith and W. C. Bass, Professors of the Wesleyan Female College.

Respectfully submitted. ARMINIUS WRIGHT, Chairman.

REPORT ON STATE OF THE CHURCH.

The committee appointed to take into consideration the state of the Church within the bounds of the South Georgia Conference, beg leave to report as follows:

We have abundant reason to thank Almighty God that the candle-stick has not been removed from its place among us, that the light still burns on our altars, that divine grace is yet furnishing oil to feed the precious flame, and that in many places in our midst there are added to the Church such as shall be saved. It becomes us, as a Conference, to be very thankful for these continued marks of the divine favor—for these additional evidences of the long suffering and forbearance, the loving kindness and tender mercy of our gracious Saviour.

It becomes us at the same time, to mourn our backsliding from the high hills of Zion, on which our fathers stood—to sigh for the pure atmosphere, so near lieaven, which they breathed, and to long for those visions of the glory land which can only be seen from an elevated stand-point of christian character, with an eye single to the glory of God, and through an atmosphere of love so clear and pure as almost to bring heaven within an arm's length of earth. Let our hearts aspire for a return to those high hills, to that pure atmosphere, to that single eye, that we may enjoy the beatific vision, take courage from the glorious river, press on to the mark of the prize of our high calling in Christ Jesus, make our own calling an election sure, and win sonls, multitudes of souls, to Christ.

Let the united prayer go up from this Conference, and be echoed and reechoed by every child of the Church within its bounds,—"create in us clean hearts, oh Lord, and renew right spirits within us; restore unto us the joy of thy salvation, and uphold us with thy free spirit; THEN shall we teach transgressors thy ways, and sinners shall be converted unto Thee." Thankful for the dews of grace that fall upon us now, let us pray for the showers of the olden time—glad that the gentle breeze sometimes favors our cheeks and moves our hearts, let us agonize for the sweeping storm that tears sin up by the roots and leaves the settled calm of a soul in full assurance of Faith

-the peace of God that passeth all understanding.

We have not now those overwhelming evidences of the favor of God which closed the doors of public houses and stores, and converted for weeks the bustle of business into one Sabbath of the Lord; wherein all men in whole communities have continued by the invisible but imperious agency of the Divine Spirit to cease from all carnal pursuits, and to stand still in speechless awe and see the glory of God—to work alone with Him who worked in them to will and to do of His good pleasure.

What has clipped the locks on the brow of Samson, making him so? Why has Judah relaxed his grasp on the ceptre of his fathers?

God is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever. He changeth not. He is as ready to bless now as ever, and to bless us in the same way and for the same end—to satisfy the travail of the soul of His son, and to people heaven with redeemed and sactified men.

The change must be in us. What is it?

We are not separate from sinners—there is not the broad line of demarkation between us and the world as in days gone by. 'Our people yield too much to frivolity and fashion, too often even, to vice and sin. Our people in some places, some of them, make, sell, buy and drink, as a beverage, spirituous liquors, which inevitable demoralize, if they do not destroy-which weaken and enervate every religious muscle, if they do not corrupt and putrify the whole heart and the entire body of a religious life. Our people, in many places, frequent and participate in amusements and diversions which cannot be done in the name of Jesus, with the spirit, the animus, of Him who went about doing good. The member of the Church of Christ sits side by side with the open scoffer at all sanctity in the theatre and the circus. The form of the professed follower of Christ floats through the mazes of the dance, in company with the lover of fashion, whose eyes never looked nor longed for a place nearer heaven than the floor of a ball-room. Around the same card table, the man of God, so-called, and the man of the world, contend with the same eagerness for victory, and enjoy it with the same zest, using the very same instruments of amusement which have wasted the intellects, beggared the fortunes, and ruined the souls of thousands of the best youth of the land.

Brethren: these things ought not so to be. We therefore submit the following resolutions:

Resolved, 1. That we recommend to all members of the Methodist Church within the limits of this Conference, to desist from these ungodly habits; and to our pastors, to enforce discipline upon all these points.

2. That the above Report and Resolutions be read in all the congregations within our bounds, with earnest exhortation to our members to refrain from the evils deprecated.

The committee would further suggest, that whereas, the General Conference of 1866 removed from the Discipline to the Preachers Manual, a section setting forth the long standing rules of our Church respecting several items of worldly conformity and sinful amusements and diversions, and whereas, this fact has given rise to the mistaken impression that the old Methodist rules on these subjects have been recinded, and in consequence, these evils have grown: Therefore Resolved, 1. That our Delegates to the next General Conference be requested to invite the attention of that body to these evils, and to urge upon it the necessity of a definite and unmistakable expression in the Discipline, of the opinion of the Church on these subjects, such as will lead to uniformity of administration in dealing with such evils.

2. That the said body be requested so to define, and if necessary, enlarge the law of the Church, on the subject of the distillation and use of spiritnous liquors, that the evil may be driven entirely out of the Church.

REPORT ON THE BIBLE CAUSE.

The Bible-what sublime and holy doctrines does it teach! what grand and enriobling truths does it disclose! what important duties does it enjoin! The Bible, -and with the Bible here is included its furniture, Christ and the Holy Spirit; for without Christ, the Bible would be of but little use to us, and without the Holy Spirit, it would have no life. The Biblewhat exceeding great and precious promises does it contain! what glowing hopes does it set before us! How it carries back the mind to the earlier associations of life, when in childhood's hours we learned its important history, or in the Sunday-school we conned its invaluable lessons; and forward to the time when we shall be called away from earth to the brighter glories which its sacred pages unfold. The Bible-how much should we love it! how diligently should we study it! how should we dwell upon its sacred terms, until they are as familiar as household words! how carefully should we observe, and how unremittingly should we obey its heavenly instructions, -so that when the light of this world is fading away, and darkness is gathering around us, a brighter light may break upon our enraptured visions, - and when the music of earth shall no longer be heard, or shall die away like the mournful reverberations of the dying echo, we may catch the first glad notes of "the new song-the song of Moses and of the Lamb."

And while we should love the Bible ourselves, and study it, we should seek to give it to others. Not only should we feel our own indebtedness to this word of life, but we should labor to give it a wider extension. We should not be satisfied with the fact, great and precious as it is, that this "word is a lamp unto our feet, and a light unto our path," but should endeavor to send it out, until the foot-way of those around us shall be illumined, and until this holy lamp shall throw its brightening lustre upon lands which have been long lying in the darkness of a spiritual night.

The American Bible Society has done and is still doing, in this respect, a noble work. Can there be conceived anything more Christ-like, more in consonance with the spirit of our blessed Christianity, than to give this precious Book to those who have it not,—to send the Bible, without note or comment, and, consequently without denominational bias, to those who have no lamp in their houses, no light to guide them, no hope to cheer them along life's gloomy pathway, and whose children are growing up around them, without any correct knowledge of the God who made and redeemed them? Let us, as a conference of ministers and laymen, aid in this glorious enterprise, and do all that we can do to give a wider circulation to the scriptures of eternal truth.

It is to be feared that the Bible is not read and studied, even by those who are called by the sacred name of Christians, as it should be, that while the lighter productions of literature, and even the trashy publications of the age, are sought for with avidity, and read with interest, the Book of books, the precious volume of Divine inspiration, is overlooked or neglected—occupies the centre-table only as an elegant piece of furniture, or lies hidden away on the book-shelf, unstudied, unread, unopened! What must we think of the man who tells you that he is in pursuit of a better country, and who, although ignorant of the way and all concerning it, yet consults no guide, seeks no directions; and what consistency can there be in the conduct of those who, although they are professedly striving to get to heaven, yet neglect the great and only chart and directory which God has given them? What else can be expected but that they will wander into forbidden paths and be forever lost amid the thickening gloom which is gathering around them. Oh! let us be wiser, and carefully read and diligently study this blessed and all-sufficient chart!

The Bible is the great text-book of Sunday-schools, and should hold a prominent place in all scientific and literary institutions; and wo be the day when it shall be banished from them as a thing of little worth, or in deference to the self-styled catholicity of those who know and care nothing for spiritual religion! Literature is invaluable, and science beyond all price; but it is when baptized with the spirit of a living Christianity. Divorced from the Bible, this value can at least be measured by time, and their light too often is like "the baleful flame which hovers over decaying mortality, and tells of the corruption that festers beneath."

Your Committee beg leave to present these resolutions:

Resolved, 1. That as a conference of ministers and lay members, we will heartily co-operate with the Agent of the American Bible Society, in the diffusion of the word of life.

2. That we carefully study the sacred scriptures ourselves, and as ministers will seek to impress upon our congregations the duty of reading and studying them.

3. That we recommend the introduction into schools of learning, as far, at least, as is practicable, the volume of God's inspiration.

W. Knox, Chairman.

REPORT ON SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The Committee to whom was referred the interests of the Southern Christian Advocate beg leave to report.

1st. The increased circulation of our church paper is cause for hearty gratification. The success already recached is demonstration of the fact that the subscription list may yet be greatly increased, with united and vigorous efforts on the part of the agents. We regret to see, by the exhibit of the publishers, that the arrearages of subscribers and agents involve embarrassment, and may entail ultimate loss to the paper. This indebtedness arises from the failure to enforce cash payments. We think it now a favorable time, and would recommend that the publishers adhere strictly to the cash principle.

2d. In view of a vacancy on the Board of the Publishing Committee, occasioned by the transfer of brother James E. Evans, we recommend the appointment of A. Wright as the representative of this Conference on said Board.

3d. We take pleasure in expressing our satisfaction at the present editorial management of the Advocate. Dr. Kennedy is a worthy successor of the illustrious men who have ocupied the position.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. M. MARSHALL, Chairman.

FASTING AND PRAYER.

Resolved, That the first Friday in April be appointed as a day of fasting and prayer for the revival of God's work throughout the Conference, and for the blessings of God upon the approaching session of the General Conference.

MEMOIRS.

REV. WILLIAM McCALL KENNEDY

Was born in Bulloch county, Georgia, May 18, 1817, and died in Jefferson county, Georgia, July 27, 1873.

Of his parentage, early life and training, we know but little more than that he was the subject of religious impressions when but a very small boy. When about fourteen years of age, he united with the Methodist Episcopal When nineteen or twenty years of age, while at a manual labor school, two hundred miles from home, and in the full enjoyment of religion, he felt called to the work of the ministry. In a conference held with some of his friends on this subject, he was from some remark made by some of them to doubt whether he was really called to be a minister of the gospel of Christ. Of this he said in after years, "I do wish I had then engaged in the performance of that duty." He left home, entered into business with a purpose to make money, grew cold religiously, and finally backslided. He remained in this condition for about six years. In 1843 he was reclaimed, and appointed to the offices of steward and class leader in the Church. Coincident with the return of the love and grace of God to his heart, was the return of the conviction upon his mind that it was his duty to preach the gospel of Christ. Against this he struggled for two years. In December, 1844, he was licensed to exhort, and in 1845 he was licensed to preach. Then came another struggle. He felt it to be his duty to enter the itinerant ministry. With this conviction he warred for two years, when he obtained his full consent to give himself wholly to the work of God. In February, 1848, he was admitted into the Florida Conference. His first appointment was Black Creek circuit. He remained in that Conference, filling the various appointments assigned him-circuits, districts, a station and a college agency-with acceptability and usefulness, until the close of the year 1866, when he came to the South Georgia Conference with the retrocession of that part of Georgia which belonged to the Florida Conference prior to that time. 'From this time until his death he continued an acceptable and efficient member of the South Georgia Conference, filling with fidelity and zeal the various appointments assigned him.

In his manner and spirit he was genial, kind and sociable; in his christian life he was sincere and constant; and in his ministerial life he was devoted and faithful, and as a result of these virtues, useful. Without those shining talents which command the applause of men, he ranked high in that estimable class of devoted laborers, through whose instrumentality mainly the church is built up, and the number of its converts steadily increased. A goodly company of his spiritual children, doubtless, greeted his ransomed spirit as it touched the shining shore, while many still in the flesh follow on, animated with the hope of joining him at the end of the journey.

There was not a member of the South Georgia Conference, at its last annual session, whose appearance authorized more confident hope of long life, than did that of brother Kennedy. Robust and active, he gave promise of many remaining years of usefulness. At the last Conference he was appointed to the Louisvillve Circuit, to which he went, and upon which he entered in the early part of the year, with good heart and hope. He labored as his habit until in July, when he was attacked by pneumonia, and ten days thereafter, and without a struggle, he fell sweetly asleep in Jesus.
